Workshop Descriptions

Child Development & Parent-Child-Interaction

This workshop highlights the importance of positive parent-child interaction during the first three years of a child's life. Positive and consistent early experiences lead to healthy development. Failure to consistently meet infant needs will result in physiological changes in the brain that negatively affect a child's development. Participants will learn how positive attachment experiences during early childhood build a template for healthy growth and positive, trusting adult relationships.

Conflict Resolution

This workshop will provide participants with opportunities to assess their own conflict resolution skills, explore techniques for handling conflicts, and practice effective intervention strategies. Participants will engage in activities that allow them to practice new skills and better understand the interplay of personality in conflict. This workshop is presented in a fun, interactive way and provides practical applications that will help participants in their personal and professional lives.

CULTURAL AWARENESS

This workshop provides information and exercises to help participants define culture, explore their own culture and the culture of other participants, and address how stereotypes, values, and communication impact relationships. Designed to open minds, Cultural Awareness will help participants to recognize similarities and appreciate one another's differences as well.

Professional Boundaries & Confidentiality

This workshop will help individuals in the family support field balance their emotional involvement with the families they serve. Respect for professional boundaries and confidentiality is crucial for staff members who address sensitive and personal issues while working closely with children and families. This workshop will facilitate the participants' understanding of professional boundaries, while emphasizing the principles of family-centered and strength-based service.
